The July 22nd end date is tentative and may change depending on the final exam dates for Math and Physics classes. The tutoring center will remain open until the last Math/Physics final.

Appointments are not required for online tutoring – students should initiate a tutoring session by sending the tutor coordinator, Andy Trafford (atrafford@ccny.cuny.edu), an email including full name, EMPLID, course number, and a brief description of the help needed. The request will be passed to an appropriate tutor who will contact the student immediately.

We like to conduct tutoring sessions using GoBoard, which is a free browser-based videoconferencing tool that includes shared whiteboard functionality. This works best on a PC, a MAC, or an iPad. It does not work on Android devices. If students cannot use GoBoard, we can still tutor using Zoom, Skype, Hangouts or even just exchanged email messages.

Note: We like to be able to see students during tutoring sessions - video gives us important feedback that we can't get from voice alone. So we prefer to keep cameras on, but it is by no means mandatory. If students don't want to be seen, for any reason at all, they are welcome to keep their camera off.
